

About Me

I received my Masters of Professional Writing (2006) and Master of Science in Education (1995) degrees from the University of Southern California, where I also worked for 16 years as a computer/technical consultant, writer/editor, webmaster and instructional technologist. I also have extensive writing experience in a wide variety of business and educational settings.

I have also been an equestrian riding instructor for 14 years at the Los Angeles Equestrian Center where I taught dressage and combined training as well as designed educational programs and websites, edited an equestrian newsletter, established a student riding club, and published articles in top equestrian magazines.

Since 2002, I have worked full-time as an adjunct faculty at several online colleges, where I teach educational technology, advanced business and advanced technical writing, Scientific & Technical Writing, Introduction to Film, and English Composition I & II classes. As a writing consultant at an online college writing center, I tutor undergraduate and graduate students in all stages of the writing and citation process.

I enjoy reading and writing Victorian/Edwardian period mystery books and creating stories2music. I live in San Diego with my Shepherd-Greyhound mix dog, Tennyson.
