I was working as a technical/computer consultant at USC when the WWW came into existence. I taught myself HTML and a paint program so that I could design the departmental website for my academic department--the School of International Relations. It was one of the first comprehensive websites for an academic department on campus.

During my equestrian career, I designed, authored and maintained business web sites for Cornerstone, Ltd. (2001-2006), Traditional Equitation School (1998-2001), and Dominion Saddlery (1999-2001).

For my college students, I designed, authored and maintain my APA Style Step-by-Step, MLA Step-by-Step (discontinued) and Knack for Writing websites (2007-present).

I designed, authored and maintain my stories2music website (2015-present) and my current professional website (2017-present).

I have taken professional development courses at San Diego Mesa College (2015-2017) in Dreamweaver CC, HTML 5/CSS, Adobe Acrobat PDF, Photoshop CC, Illustrator CC and In-Design CC.

I have taken professional development courses at Palomar College (2017-present) in multimedia and graphic communication.
